Citadel Trust Investment Policy

Revised 27 May 2011

Prologue to Statement of Investment Policy, Objectives, and Guidelines for The Citadel Trust, Incorporated

The Board of Directors of The Citadel Trust, Inc. has decided to develop two very different sets of investment guidelines for our primary investment managers. For our traditional primary investment manager (referred to as our investment consultant, currently Morgan Stanley Smith Barney) guidelines were last modified in 2006 in which the Board of Directors play a more active role in reviewing each of the investment managers recommended by our consultant and approving proposed asset allocations.

In 2009 the Board of Directors subsequently approved of a second primary investment manager (currently Spider Management) and transferred a significant portion of the Trust's assets to be managed by this firm. This alternative management style involves giving the primary investment manager complete discretion for all investment decisions, including both asset allocations and the appointment of other investment managers for select portions of the assets being managed, unless otherwise specified by limitations within the guidelines.

It is the intention of the Board of Directors that these two set of guidelines operate in parallel in order to provide the board with appropriate control and oversight of each primary investment manager. It is not the intention of the Board that one set of guidelines supersedes the other (as erroneously appears in a Note to the 2009 statement). Likewise the board may elect to have the specific benchmarks by which each investment manager is measured changed periodically to conform to changes in the underlying portfolios. However, over the long term (5 – 7 years) it is the objective of both portfolios to develop a minimum annual total rate of return of at least 5% plus the change in the CPI.

It is anticipated that the traditional primary investment manager may have a more volatile return pattern over the long term and the alternative primary investment manager may have less volatile returns, particularly in periods of economic recession or uncertainty. From time to time the board may choose to rebalance the funds allocated to each of these primary investment managers based on investment results and the perceived success of each primary investment manager's strategy.

Section 1 – Morgan Stanley Smith Barney

I. BOARD POLICIES AND OBJECTIVES

Scope of This Investment Policy

This statement of investment policy reflects the investment policy and objectives of the undesignated assets of The Citadel Trust, Incorporated. It does not cover those assets with donor constraints with respect to investment policy and objectives.

Purpose of This Investment Policy Statement

This statement of investment policy is set forth by the Directors of The Citadel Trust, Incorporated, in order to:

1. Define and assign the responsibilities of all involved parties.
2. Establish a clear understanding for all involved parties of the investment goals and objectives of The Citadel Trust, Incorporated.
3. Offer guidance and limitations to all Investment Managers regarding the investment of Fund assets.
4. Establish a basis for evaluating investment results.
5. Administer trust assets in accordance with the South Carolina Uniform Management of Institutional Funds Act 34-6-60, which states:
“In the administration of the powers to appropriate net appreciation, to make and retain investments, and to delegate investment management of institutional funds, members of a governing board shall exercise ordinary business care and prudence under the facts and circumstances prevailing at the time of the action or decision. In so doing they shall consider long and short term needs of the institution in carrying out its educational, religious, charitable, or other eleemosynary purposes, its present and anticipated financial requirements, expected total return on its investment, price level trends, and general economic conditions.”

Investment accounts of the portfolio are to be diversified “so as to minimize the risk of large losses, unless under circumstances it is clearly prudent not to do so.”

6. Establish the relevant investment time horizon for which the Fund assets will be managed.

In general, the purpose of this statement is to outline a philosophy and attitude which will guide the investment management of the assets toward the desired results. It is intended to be sufficiently specific to be meaningful, yet flexible enough to be practical in application, and to meet changing economic and financial conditions which could impact on the earnings and corpus of The Citadel Trust, Incorporated.

Delegation of Authority

The Directors are fiduciaries and are responsible for directing and monitoring the investment management of Fund assets. As such, the Directors are authorized to delegate certain responsibilities to professional experts in various fields. If such experts engaged are also deemed to be fiduciaries, they must acknowledge such in writing. (All expenses for such experts must be customary and reasonable, and will be borne by the Trust as deemed appropriate and necessary.) These include, but are not limited to:

1. Investment Managers. The investment managers have discretion to purchase, sell, or hold specific securities that will be used to meet the Fund's objectives, as outlined in specific agreements with each investment manager.
2. Investment Management Consultant. A consultant may be engaged to assist the Directors in: establishing investment policy, objectives, and guidelines; selecting investment managers; reviewing such managers over time; measuring and evaluating investment performance; and other tasks as deemed appropriate.
3. Custodian. The custodian(s) will physically (or through agreement with a sub-custodian) maintain possession of securities owned by the Funds, collect dividend and interest payments, redeem maturing securities, and effect receipt and delivery following purchases and sales.
4. Additional specialists such as attorneys, auditors, actuaries, consultants, and others may be engaged by the Directors to assist in meeting their responsibilities and obligations to administer Fund assets prudently.

The Directors will not reserve any control over investment decisions, with the exception of specific limitations described in these statements. Investment managers will be held responsible and accountable to achieve the objectives herein stated.

- Settling and reporting all transactions or changes occurring with respect to the Trust's assets.
- Providing timely monthly statements which include the following:
 - Asset Valuation
 - Cash Flow Analysis
 - Dividend & Interest Income Received
 - Deposits and Withdrawals

General Goal and Investment Objective

The goal of the Trust is to support, at the discretion of the Board of Directors, educational programs and activities that are of significant value to The Citadel. The primary investment objective of the Trust will be to provide for long-term growth of income and principal without undue exposure to risk. The objective shall be accomplished utilizing a balanced strategy of fixed income, equities, cash equivalents or other appropriate investments in a flexible mix which is conducive to participation in rising markets while allowing for adequate protection in falling markets. It is intended that the objective of the Trust will be achieved by each investment manager over a 5-year period, net of investment management fees and commissions. However, the Trust reserves the right to evaluate and make any necessary changes regarding the investment managers over a shorter term using the criteria established in the "Evaluation of Investment Managers" section of this policy statement.

Asset Allocation

The Board of Directors expects and will be provided asset allocation advice from the Investment Consultant, but the Board of Directors is the sole authority and decision maker with respect to asset allocation. Normal cash flow rebalancing by the custodian at the direction of the investment consultant in conformity with this policy statement is allowed and acceptable.

The asset allocation decision is considered to be the most critical decision in fund management since it has the greatest potential impact on the future returns of the Trust's managed assets. The portfolio will be diversified among cash equivalents, fixed-income securities, equities or other appropriate investments. The allocation among these asset categories will be reviewed at least annually, and will be approved by the Board of Directors as an addendum to this policy statement. (See Appendix B-1).

In addition, modeled asset allocation ranges (See Appendix B-2) are designed to provide guidance for the setting the Citadel Trust's mix of equities and fixed income (See Appendix B-1) based on historical capital markets and inflation covering 75 + years. The modeled returns (adjusted for inflation and investment expenses) give further guidance with respect to spending or distribution rates.

Spending Policy

The Directors will attempt to balance the Fund's shorter-term grant making obligations with its goal to provide grants into perpetuity, and therefore design a spending policy which is flexible. Since expected dividend and interest yields from portfolios are not consistent and predictable, the Fund may tend toward an investment strategy seeking higher long-term investment returns than would be the case if dividend and interest yields were their primary consideration. The Board of Directors will set a total return spending policy equal to 5% of the portfolio market value.

Spending - Moving Average Determination

This Fund will use the moving average method of determining year to year spending in order to smooth distributions from the aggregate portfolio. The "portfolio market value" as mentioned under the preceding Spending Policy section and referenced throughout this statement will be determined initially based on the prior 3 years moving average of portfolio market value. When practical, the "portfolio market value" will be determined based on the prior twelve quarters moving average of portfolio market value. This policy serves two purposes. First, it provides for more consistent and predictable spending for the programs supported by this Trust. Second, it allows the Directors to design an investment strategy with a higher expected return than might be the case if spending were determined by annual investment performance or yield.

Investment Strategy

In order to meet its needs, the investment strategy of The Citadel Trust, Incorporated, is to emphasize total return; that is, the aggregate return from capital appreciation and dividend and interest income. This emphasis on total return will recognize the potential for reduced volatility through diversification of investment styles, i.e., core, value, growth, large cap, small cap, international equity management, and fixed income management or other appropriate investments. The investment vehicles may include the use of investment approaches that combine asset classes/styles. (e.g., equities, bonds or other appropriate investments in an asset allocation approach; or a multiple equity fund or pool combining large cap, small cap, international, etc; and other such combinations of appropriate investments which may meet the objectives of The Trust). Foreign currency risk and interest rate risk are outlined in Appendix B-4.

Performance Objectives

1. The total return of the Trust is expected to exceed the rate of inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, plus 5%, annualized over rolling 5 year periods
2. The total return of the Trust shall be compared annually to the return of the Annual NACUBO Endowment Study.

Aggregated Portfolio Risk

Risk can be defined as volatility (standard deviation/Beta) caused by temporary losses during periods of financial market declines. Risk can also be defined as permanent asset loss. Trust assets are diversified through marketable securities or other appropriate investments to reduce the effects of permanent asset loss on the aggregated portfolio. Aggregated portfolio risk is determined by the Board of Directors decisions related to asset allocation, i.e. the percentage of Trust assets in very low volatility assets (e.g., low duration bonds) versus the percentage of Trust assets invested in higher volatility assets (e.g. equities). The appropriate asset allocation for Trust assets, given the desire of the Board of Directors to minimize volatility and maximize returns, is a mix of assets which market history shows has a high probability to produce a positive return over the 5-10 year investment time horizon. Appendix B-3 illustrates the historic periods of largest risk and the probability of positive outcome.

Investment Expenses

The investment expenses/fees incurred by The Trust will be reviewed through comparisons to other endowment/foundation expense/fee ratios of a similar size compiled by an objective third party organization. Such investment expenses/fees will be accounted for on a quarterly basis and included in quarterly reports.

APPENDIX A-1

GUIDELINES FOR INVESTMENT MANAGERS

Investment Management Policy

1. Preservation of Capital - Consistent with their respective investment styles and philosophies, investment managers should make reasonable efforts to preserve capital, understanding that losses may occur in individual securities as market conditions vary.
2. Risk Aversion - Understanding that risk is present in all types of securities and investment styles, the Directors recognize that some risk is necessary to produce long-term investment results that are sufficient to meet the Trust's objectives. However, the Investment Managers are to make reasonable efforts to minimize risk and will be evaluated regularly to ensure that the risk assumed is commensurate with that manager's given investment style. (See "Volatility of Returns" below.)
3. Adherence to Investment Discipline - Investment Managers are expected to adhere to the investment management styles for which they were engaged. Managers will be evaluated regularly for adherence to investment discipline.

Volatility of Returns

The Directors understand that in order to achieve their objectives for Trust assets, the Trust will experience volatility of returns and fluctuations of market value. The Trust can tolerate losses equal to or greater than an index appropriate for each management style; e.g., Fixed, Large Cap, Small Cap, Core, International, etc.

Liquidity

To minimize the possibility of a loss occasioned by the sale of a security forced by the need to meet a required payment, the Directors will periodically provide investment managers with an estimate of expected net cash flow requirements. The Directors will notify the investment managers in a timely manner, to allow sufficient time to build up necessary liquid reserves.

APPENDIX B-4

The Citadel Trust

Foreign Currency and Interest Rate Risk

Foreign Currency Risk

The Citadel Trust Board of Directors is aware of the risk from fluctuating currency values in that portion of the fund which is invested in international securities. Investment managers who invest in international securities may purchase and sell currencies to facilitate securities transactions and enter into forward currency contracts to protect against changes in currency exchange rates. Such currency transactions are at the discretion of the international investment manager(s) and it is recognized by The Board of Directors of The Citadel Trust that while entering into forward currency transactions could minimize the risk of loss due to decline in the value of the hedged currency, such transactions could also limit any potential gain that may result from an increase in the value of the currency.

Interest Rate Risk

The Citadel Trust Board of Directors is aware of interest rate risk to bond principal valuation. Long dated bonds which have the most principal risk in a rising interest rate environment may be used by investment managers whose style utilizes strategies which include long dated bonds.

Section 2 – Spider Management Inc.

Overview

The Board of Directors of The Citadel Trust provides oversight of the assets entrusted to it by the Board of Visitors of The Citadel. Over the last fifteen years, these funds have been managed in a traditional fashion in which the Board of Directors is responsible for the asset allocation of investable funds between different types of investment assets and the selection of specific investment managers utilizing the advice of an investment consultant. In reviewing larger endowments, especially those with superior investment results over this same period, it is apparent that a change in approach, which more specifically matches these larger endowments' investment processes and oversight, should result in superior returns for The Citadel Trust. This statement of investment policy, objectives, and guidelines provides the framework for this change in investment process and oversight by the Board of Directors.

Scope and Objectives

This statement of investment policy covers all assets held by The Citadel Trust, but does not cover those assets with donor investment constraints. The primary investment objective of The Citadel Trust is to earn an average annual real rate of return of at least 5% per year over the long term, which will enable the trust to maintain the purchasing power of the assets in perpetuity and meet its current spending policy. The secondary objective is to outperform other similar size endowments and to rank in the top quartile of NACUBO returns for comparable size endowments.

The Board of Directors shall:

1. Specifically administer trust assets in accordance with the South Carolina Uniform Management of Institutional Funds Act 34-6-60, which states:
“In the administration of the powers to appropriate net appreciation, to make and retain investments, and to delegate investment management of institutional funds, members of a governing board shall exercise ordinary business care and prudence under the facts and circumstances prevailing at the time of the action or decision. In so doing they shall consider long and short term needs of the institution in carrying out its educational, religious, charitable, or other eleemosynary purposes, its present and anticipated financial requirements, expected total return on its investment, price level trends, and general economic conditions” Further, investment accounts of the portfolio are to be diversified “so as to minimize the risk of large losses, unless under circumstances it is clearly prudent not to do so.”
2. Be responsible for selecting the Primary Investment Manager and on occasion other Investment Managers not reporting directly to the Primary Investment Manager. It shall approve any substantive changes in asset allocation beyond that outlined in Appendix A and shall periodically evaluate the Primary Investment Manager and any other Investment Managers not reporting directly to the Primary Investment Manager.

3. Assure that there is a clear assignment of responsibilities between the Board of Directors, the Vice President for Finance and Business Affairs, the Primary Investment Manager, other Investment Managers, Custodians, and any others consultants selected by the Board. Prudent practices require that firms which provide professional services offer such services and advice solely in the interest of The Citadel Trust.
4. Select an independent Auditor to annually review the books and records of The Citadel Trust and forward this audit to The Citadel Board of Visitors.

Terms and Definitions

Commonly used terms and definitions are identified in Appendix B.

Distribution Policy

The annual distribution from the fund shall be set at 5% of the average value of the assets held over the last five fiscal years based on the year-end market value of the portfolio. The annual distribution may be changed from time to time by the Board of Directors so as not to erode the corpus of the endowment during periods of severe market downturns.

Investment Manager Responsibilities

With respect to those assets entrusted to it, the primary investment manager has complete investment discretion for all investment decisions, including without limitation the appointment of other investment managers for select portions of the assets being managed, unless otherwise specified. These respective investment managers have the responsibility of voting all proxies in the best interest of the Trust. The primary investment manager and other investment managers appointed by the board will report on a timely basis quarterly investment performance results and will inform the Board of Directors regarding any qualitative changes in the investment management organization, including changes in portfolio management personnel, ownership structure, and investment philosophy. The primary investment manager and other investment managers appointed by the Board of Directors will communicate any major changes in economic outlook, investment strategy, or other factors that affect the implementation of their investment process.

Responsibilities of the Executive Vice President for Finance, Administration and Operations

The Executive Vice President of The Citadel is responsible for implementing policies and decisions made by the Directors of The Citadel Trust. The responsibilities of Executive Vice President are similar to those of an executive director and include:

1. Scheduling periodic meetings for the Directors.
2. Maintaining communication with the Investment Consultant and notifying Directors of any major changes to investment performance or strategy.
3. Authorizing the sale or receipt of various investments when necessary.

4. Notifying investment managers of any changes in management responsibility.
5. Supervising Citadel staff who maintain the financial records of The Trust.

Responsibilities of the Custodian(s)

The duties of the financial asset custodian will include but are not limited to the following: (1) holding publicly traded securities in street name at Depository Trust Company, The Federal Reserve, or other approved and appropriate depositories, (2) collecting in a timely fashion all dividends, interest, returns of capital and any other distribution of or from the Trust's assets, (3) settling and reporting all transactions or changes occurring with respect to the Trust's assets, and (4) providing timely monthly statements which include asset valuation, cash flow analysis, dividend and interest income received, and deposits and withdrawals.

Investment and Asset Allocation Policy

The primary investment manager and other investment managers appointed by the board shall seek to adhere to the investment management styles for which they were hired, preserve the capital of the fund consistent with their investment styles and philosophies, understanding that losses may occur in individual securities, and make reasonable efforts to control risk. The board understands, however, that for a limited portion of the portfolio the primary investment manager may select funds, which employ leverage to enhance the returns, and that this strategy also increases risk under certain market conditions.

With regard to asset allocation policy, the Trust looks to the primary investment manager and others investment managers appointed by the board to provide a strategic mix of asset classes that produces the highest expected investment return within a prudent risk framework in accordance with the asset allocation established in Appendix A. Each class should not be considered alone, but by the role it plays in a diversified portfolio as diversification among asset classes has historically increased returned and reduced overall portfolio risk. The Citadel Trust is committed to maintaining a bias toward equity investments, which produce higher long term returns, and recognizes that the endowment's long time horizon is well suited to exploiting illiquid investment and less efficient markets that offer higher potential returns.

The Citadel Trust has decided to allow investments in the following assets classes as more clearly defined in Appendix C: Domestic Equity, International Equity, Opportunistic Investments, Absolute Return Strategies, Real Assets, Real Estate, Fixed Income Assets, and Cash or Cash Equivalent. While it is recognized that at various times a degree of overweighting is appropriate, the managers will avoid excessive concentration of investments, which is defined as having more than 5% of any pool, mutual fund, portfolio or other manager's grouping of equities in any single of the total portfolio in securities of specific issuer with the exception of the U. S. Government, its agencies, and high quality money markets funds.

Evaluation and Selection of Primary Investment Manager and Other Investment Managers

The board has the responsibility for the selection and periodic evaluation of the primary investment manager and other investments managers it shall from time to time appointment. The primary criteria which shall be used for selecting such managers is their record of past performance over a reasonable period of time, the quality and tenure of management, the viability of the investment strategy selected, investment control procedures, and the fee structure relative to overall performance.

Benchmarks to help evaluate the primary investment manager performance are included as a part of Appendix D.

Foreign Currency and Interest Rate Risk

The board has carefully considered and is aware of the risk from fluctuating currency values in that portion of the fund, which is invested in international securities. Investment managers who invest in international securities may purchase and sell currencies to facilitate securities transactions and enter into forward currency contracts to protect against changes in currency exchange rates. Such currency transactions are at the discretion of the international investment managers and it is recognized that while entering into forward currency transactions could minimize the risk of loss due to decline in the value of the hedged currency, such transactions could also limit any potential gains that may result from an increase in the value of the currency as well.

Long dated bonds may be utilized as a deflationary hedge and the board is aware of the principal risk presented when long bonds decline in value as a result of rising interest rates.

Conclusion

The Citadel Trust Board of Directors is committed to meeting on a regular quarterly basis to review the performance of the primary investment manager and other investment managers directly appointed by the board and to update this statement on a yearly basis and to assure that the Trust Assets are being managed in a manner which provides for the maximum total rate of return commensurate with risk appropriate to a endowment with a long term investment horizon.

Appendix C Asset Classes: Definitions and Benchmarks

Domestic Equity: Publicly traded U. S. stocks are a core asset of institutional portfolios with long-term investment horizons and modest liquidity constraints. The objective of the Domestic Equity portfolio is to generate high returns and high liquidity through consistent exposure to common stock investments. The domestic equity portfolio will contain both a passive core and an active investment strategy. The passive core is meant to provide low-cost exposure to the U.S. equity market. The passive core to limit Beta exposure will be achieved primarily through the use of swaps on the S&P 500 Index. The portfolio seeks to generate incremental returns through its active investment strategy. The active investment strategy will include both long/short and long only managers.

The primary benchmarks for the Domestic Equity portfolio are the Russell 3000 and the S&P 500.

International Equity: Publicly traded common stock of predominantly established international markets. It is thought that these markets will potentially generate higher returns than the U. S. market as foreign economies are expected to grow more rapidly in the future and the markets are less efficient. In addition, international equities have only a moderate correlation to the U. S. markets and thus enables them to serve as a diversifier. The objective of the International Equity portfolio is to generate high returns with moderate liquidity and to provide a diversification benefit. The international equity portfolio takes an active investment approach due to the less efficient nature of the market which should generate higher returns than a passive core. From time to time exposure to international markets may be gained through the use of swaps on the MSCI EAFE Index.

The primary benchmark for the International Equity portfolio will be the MSCI-World ex-U. S. Index.

Opportunistic: Illiquid domestic and international investments in both private and public companies. These investments include venture capital, buyouts, oil and gas, high yield, and subordinated debt. The opportunistic portfolio's objective is to earn higher returns than the public equity markets over the long term. This portfolio invests in highly illiquid positions and should generate higher returns as compensation for the illiquidity. A secondary objective of the opportunistic investments is to provide diversification. The portfolio's strategy is to invest in a select number of funds managed by the highest quality management teams usually organized as limited partnerships. Managers are sought which have proprietary deal flow and whose experience enables them to bring strategic, operational, or technical expertise to a transaction in addition to financial acumen and capital. The portfolio is diversified across categories and investment stage.

The primary benchmarks for the Opportunistic portfolio are the Venture Economics Private Equity venture capital and buyout benchmarks weighted 50% each.

Absolute Return Strategies: Investments with managers specializing in event-driven strategies such as merger arbitrage, distressed securities, convertible arbitrage, and global macro strategies that have low correlations to any other asset class. The objective of this asset class is to generate high, equity-like returns without assuming significant exposure to the domestic and international equity markets. The portfolio's liquidity will be moderate, less than that of the traditional public equity portfolios, but more liquid than the opportunistic portfolio. This portfolio will focus on areas and strategies where value added by active management can contribute a substantial portion of the return. Diversification amongst strategies will be wide in order to dampen the portfolio's overall volatility.

The primary benchmark for the Absolute Return Strategies portfolio will be 2 X the 90 day Treasury bill rate.

Real Assets: A portfolio comprised of investments in oil and gas, commodities, timber, and inflation-linked bonds. Real Assets represent claims on future streams of inflation-sensitive income, supplying protection against unanticipated inflation and playing an important diversifying role.

The primary benchmark will be the Consumer Price Index + 6%.

Real Estate: The long-term objective of the Real Estate portfolio is to provide equity-like returns while providing a partial hedge against inflation. In addition, real estate provides for attractive diversification due to its low correlation with other asset classes. The portfolio is directed largely to illiquid investments with a long time horizon.

The primary benchmark is the NCREIF Property Index, a broad index of institutional quality, privately held real estate.

Fixed Income: High quality intermediate to long term publicly traded bonds. The primary objective of the fixed income asset class is to provide protection during deflationary periods. A secondary objective is to provide liquidity as fixed income securities generate stable income flows.

The primary benchmarks will be the Barclays Capital Aggregate and Long Bond indices.

Cash or Cash Equivalents: As an endowment has a long-term time horizon, it is considered prudent to minimize the use of cash in the overall portfolio due to its low return and the diminution of purchasing power that results. Cash or Cash Equivalents will be used to rebalance the portfolio and when near-term institutional needs are forecast.

The primary benchmark will be the 90-day Treasury bill rate.

Appendix D

Custom Benchmarks for Primary Investment Manager

2 X 90 day Treasury Bills	20%
Venture Economics Index	15% (50% buyout, 50% venture)
MSCI-World ex-US Index	20%
Barclay Capital (Bond) Aggregate	5%
NCREIF Real Estate Index	5%
Consumer Price Index + 6%	10%
